Will Argentina start a lithium battery factory in Latin America?(Image: Mariano Garcia / Alamy) Argentina will start operations at the first lithium battery cell factory in Latin America before the end of the year. The country aims to boost its position in the region's electric transport and energy storage markets, and go beyond simply producing the lithium that is critical to their growth. How much battery power does a Y-TEC plant have?The plant will have an annual capacity of 15 megawatt hours of battery power, which is equivalent to the amount of energy needed to run 2,500 homes or 400 electric vehicles for 12 months, Y-TEC says. Where is y-TEC launching a lithium battery plant?The majority-state-owned company Y-TEC is set to open its first industrial-scale lithium battery plant in the city of La Plata, in Buenos Aires province. Could another technology leapfrog the lithium-ion phosphate battery produced by Y-TEC?For Saul Feilbogen, a lawyer specialising in lithium who chaired November's Argentina & LATAM Lithium Summit in Buenos Aires, it is feasible that another technology will leapfrog the lithium-ion phosphate battery being produced by Y-TEC. Currently, there are two main types of batteries in competition. Could a new lithium plant add value to Argentina's lithium industry?A worker at a lithium plant in the Salinas Grandes salt flat in northern Argentina. The country's lithium production is rising, and a new battery plant will be one of the first facilities to process the metal domestically, with hopes of adding value to its industry.
